Industrial Commission Holds Hearings at Wake Forest Law School

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Raleigh, N.C. – The North Carolina Industrial Commission held Full Commission hearings at Wake Forest University School of Law on Tuesday, March 21, 2017. The workers’ compensation hearings were held in the Worrell Professional Center and were open to both law students and the general public.

“Hearing cases at law schools across the state has been an excellent opportunity for the Industrial Commission to connect with aspiring attorneys and other legal professionals,” said Commissioner Christopher Loutit. “We appreciate Wake Forest’s hospitality and participation in our academic outreach efforts.”

The hearings at Wake Forest University School of Law were the fourth in the Industrial Commission’s Law School Outreach Initiative. The Commission looks forward to continuing this program, building relationships with the legal community, and providing the unique opportunity for law students to observe the workers’ compensation system in action.
